Causes of change in operating income

Sales

• Despite the strong order backlog, overseas demand, which had been driven by special demand, is expected to slow down and remain at about the same level as last fiscal year.

Operating income

• Although we will continue our efforts to improve production, we expect a drop in income due to the rising cost of steel and higher cost of labor, especially in North America.

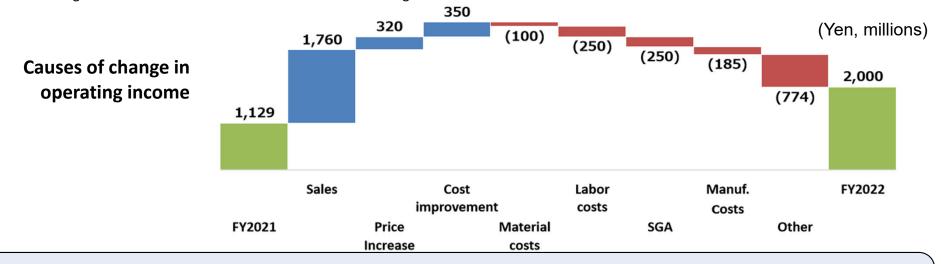

11. FY2022 Motion Control Operations Forecast

1	(Yen,	mil	lions

Control	%	5.7%	6.4%	10.8%	8.7%

^{*1:} Sales figures include internal sales and transfers between segments.

Sales

• Parts supply problems will continue in the first half of the year, so recovery will be slow, but sales are projected to increase.

Operating income

• Despite an increase in parts procurement costs, we expect an increase in profit due to ongoing efforts to improve production.

	%	9.9%	8.4%	11.5%	10.0%

^{*1:} Sales figures include internal sales and transfers between segments.

Sales

• Recovery is expected in all regions of Japan, the Americas, Europe, Indian Ocean Rim, China, and South Korea.

Operating income

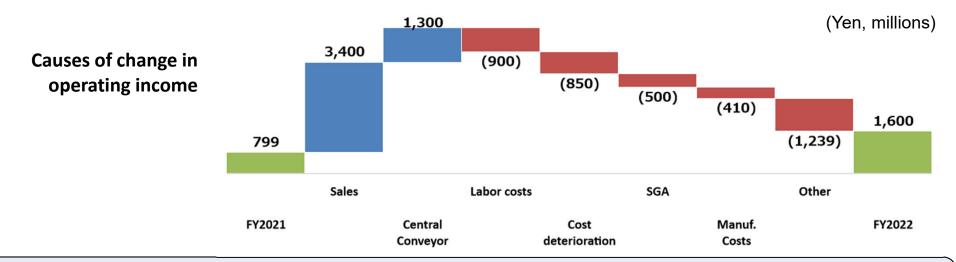

• Income is expected to increase due to sales recovery, but operating income margin is expected to remain almost flat compared to last fiscal year due to higher labor costs in North America.

sales

• Sales is expected to increase due to higher sales in each region.

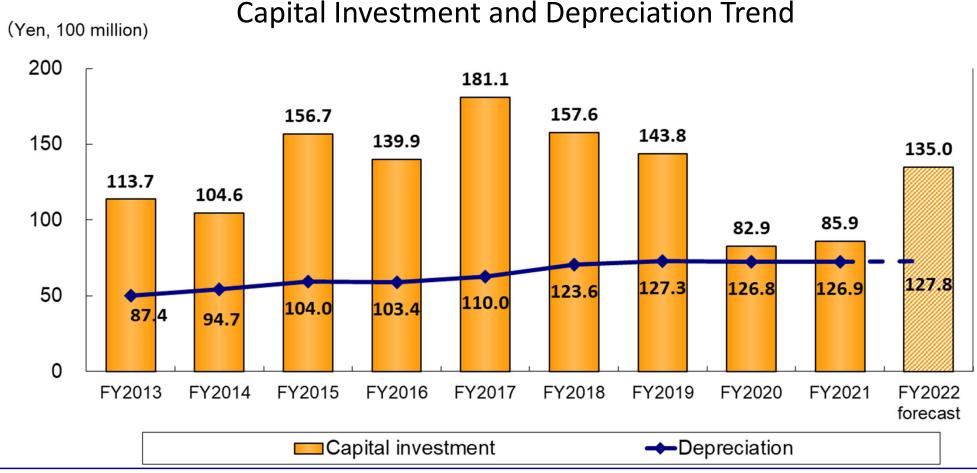

Operating income

• Although income in Materials Handling Division (Tsubakimoto Chain) will decrease due to aggressive investment in new businesses, we expect to see an overall increase in income due to a decrease in losses in the Americas.

12. Capital Investment and Depreciation

- "Capital investment" to strengthen growth potential
 - Investment in more efficient and automated production systems (all operations)

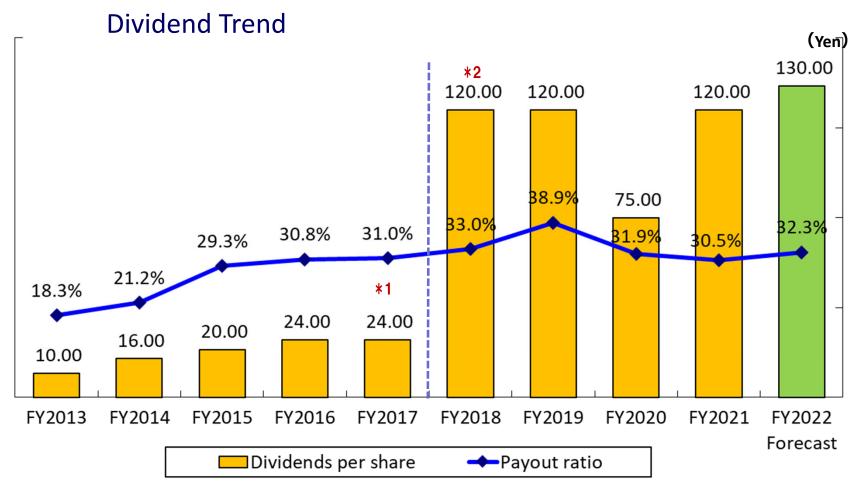

13. Return to Stockholders

Dividend Policy

• The company aims to maintain its profit distribution based on a consolidated dividend payout ratio of 30%, under a basic policy of reflecting consolidated results in the dividend.
